CHRISTMAS IN ROME THE MUST-SEE EXHIBITIONS

At Christmastime, Rome attracts visitors from far and wide, being the world's richest open-air museum. In addition to the city's best-known sights, there are a number of great temporary exhibitions, which are definitely not to be missed. Here are the must-sees: Tiepolo: colors and drawings at the Capitoline Museums (till January 2015); the beautiful photographs by Massimo Listri, one of the world's most celebrated interior design photographers, at the Vatican Museums (till December 20, 2014) and at the Francesca Antonacci Gallery; Henri Cartier Bresson at the Ara Pacis (till January 6, 2015); Hans Memling at Scuderie del Quirinale (till January 18, 2015); the Gerhard Richter exhibition at Palazzo delle Esposizioni till January 10, 2015 and the Bellissima exhibit at Maxxi (December 11, 2014-April 27, 2015), curated by Stefano Tonchi and Maria Luisa Frisa.

I LOVE SHOPPING THE CAPITAL'S BEST DESTINATIONS

A tour of Rome's shopping streets must include Via Condotti and Via del Corso, Via Borgognona, Via Frattina and Piazza di Spagna. Actually, all the streets surrounding Via dei Condotti and Piazza di Spagna, including the beautiful Via del Babuino which leads to Piazza del Popolo, are lined with designer boutiques and high jewelry shops. The rarest and most original Christmas decorations, in blown glass or handmade, can be found at Sempre Natale, open all year round, located between the Pantheon and Piazza Navona, at 93 Via della Scrofa. Vintage and modern antique lovers will enjoy Rome's largest and most popular flea market, Porta Portese, in the Trastevere area: colourful, loud and cheerfully chaotic, open on Sunday mornings.
